The Muller Company has collaborated with Alveole which allows us to support biodiversity. We discovered early on that the honeybee is a surprisingly powerful vehicle for connecting people to nature. An experience with a beehive is a great starting point for a deeper environmental education. Education leads to inspiration which in turn leads to action. Being motivated by a single idea: that caring for bees will lead people to care for the environment. After all, we are human beings - loving something is what sparks our need to protect it.

Bees at Work!

Honeybees are very docile, focused mainly on bringing floral resources back to their colony.
Located on the Mezzanine level parking
